Alaska Student ID System

The Alaska Student ID System

The Alaska State Board of Education & Early Development passed a regulation last Fall requiring school districts to assign a unique 10-digit identification number to all public school students by August 31, 2002. These numbers are necessary to conduct studies of student test performance across school years, assign school designators and link different databases maintained by the Department of Education & Early Development.

The computer that operates the Alaska Student ID System will be located in Juneau and will use the world wide web to communicate with all schools and districts in the state. Districts will be able to obtain student ID numbers one at a time or through a batch process. In the batch process a district submits a file containing many student names. The system automatically assigns the student ID numbers and returns the file with this new information. Additionally, the system may be used to look up the student ID number of a student previously entered into the system.

To enter a student ID number, a designated school employee, called an operator, needs to access the Alaska Student ID System through a web browser. The web address is <https://www.asis.eed.state.ak.us>. Once logged onto the system, the operator enters the following student information:

Required Information

- First Name
- Middle Initial
- Last Name
- Date of Birth
- Gender
- Six-digit School Code where child first entered school in Alaska

Optional Information

- Aliases (nicknames)
- Other Last Names
- Mother's maiden name
- Birthplace
- Student ID number assigned by local district

A unique 10-digit number is returned to the operator when this student information is entered into the Alaska Student ID System. If the system finds a possible duplication, this information will be presented to the operator who must then resolve the duplication before a student ID number will be returned.

The district enters the student ID number into a student's school record and follows the student in the event of transfer to another school. The number will also be used on all state required examinations and other student-level information submitted to the department by school districts.

The Alaska Student ID System employs several security measures including passwords and administration rights, which the department assigns to School District Student ID System Administrators.
